Rejoice

When I stopped by the men’s room during the break between worship services I discovered that my fly was already open. That meant it had been open during the entire sermon I had just preached. I smiled when I thought about the emphasis I had made on being prepared to go to heaven. We should have concluded by singing “I’ll fly away.”

Apparently the baggy pants had not allowed gapping in a conspicuous manner. There are dozens of people in our church who would have delighted to point out my situation if it had been obvious. When I dressed for the morning I had forgotten to finish the process. It wasn’t the first time that has happened.

At the conclusion of my welcoming of every older lady in their Sunday school class at Harmony Baptist Church, Bob pulled me aside to tell me my barn door was open. I think he knew before, but waited until I circled the room. Then there was the time when I discovered and corrected the problem while seated in the choir as Todd Belmear taught the children’s sermon. I appreciated his lengthy prayer. How could I ever forget such a thing? W.A. Criswell explained that the final thing he did before standing in the pulpit was to check and see if his pants were zipped. I have always tried to do the same.

But none of us can remember everything all the time. Like last week after the power went off and I reset our alarm clock on the evening before my day off. I forgot that by resetting the time of the alarm it also set the alarm. On my day off, when the alarm sounded at 5:00 a.m., Nancy simply asked, “Why?” I had no answer. It’s just hard to remember to do everything all the time.

Actually, it’s impossible to remember to do everything all the time. Sometimes we forget. Sometimes we make wrong choices. Sometimes we try stupid things. Perfection cannot be achieved by any human being.

Perfection was achieved by Jesus Christ and is credited to the eternal account of all who place their faith in Him. He never forgets those who are His people. We trust Him completely because we know that we cannot trust ourselves.

Where did I leave my cell phone?

Thank You

Dear Church Family,

Mary and I would like to express our thanksgiving for the outpouring support for the Angel Tree program. You purchased gifts for about 75 children of incarcerated parents. The gifts have all been delivered. The expressions of thanksgiving from the caregivers and parents was gratifying. We expanded our coverage to children in Butler, Hammon, Geary, etc. Many of these rural areas do not have programs like Care and Share so this was a special blessing to them. We will follow up with an encouraging letter challenging them to enroll their children in Child Evangelism Fellowship Bible Study clubs and a local church. Pray that these seeds will take root and grow so they will not repeat the sins of their parents.
