Rejoice!

For weeks water had periodically filled the tank on the toilet in the hall bathroom. Sometimes it occurred after we used the sink in the master bath. Occasionally the spewing sound occurred without any obvious cause. Very little water was being wasted, so I delayed having anything done. Before I could really get irritated, everything quieted down.

I did raise the lid on the tank a couple of times and check out the working parts. I do the same thing with my vehicles from time to time. I don't really know what I am looking for, but it just seems like the thing to do. There was the time when I discovered missing spark plug wires, compliments of the neighborhood squirrel. Usually, however, I just shut the hood and continue until things get worse.

Get worse, they did. The toilet in question decided to increase its activity during the middle of a night. Our sleep was interrupted by the irritating sound. It was like a snoring preacher on steroids. Not me - I'm talking about those guys I've bunked with while attending the State Bible Conference at Falls Creek. There will be stars in their wives' crowns.

Before she put her feet on the floor the next morning, Nancy informed me that she was calling a plumber. The noise had to stop. While she was getting ready for our morning walk I once again raised the lid on the tank and looked at the setup. In the past I had seen my dad bend the arm that held the float in order to fix such problems. Even though this was a much newer version than the one he had fixed, I gave it a try. After all, a plumber was about to be summoned anyway. He could fix what I messed up.

I didn't mess anything up. The minor adjustment forced enough pressure on the valve to seal it tightly. The water quit running. Nancy began smiling. I thought about running an ad in the paper (just kidding). The irritating problem was solved with a minor adjustment I had delayed trying. It worked for daddy and it worked for me.

Usually we know what we need to do in life to eliminate irritations. We may have learned it from our parents when we were young. Relief comes when we quit delaying and take action.

Sharing the Lord

Serving the Lord

D-Now Weekend

Thank you church family for all of your prayers, your hard work, and the financial help you provided. Thank you also for opening your homes to our students and leaders. You helped make D-Now weekend incredible. I am so thankful for a church that supports its student ministry.

It is exciting to see students grow closer in their walk with Christ. I am ready to see what God has in store for our students as they head to school with an excitement to share Christ with their friends. Joshua 1:9 says, "Have I not commanded you? Be strong and courageous. Do not be terrified; do not be discouraged, for the LORD your God will be with you wherever you go." We have challenged our students to be "strong and courageous" and to recognize the power they have in Christ.

Thank you again for giving of your time this weekend. Please continue to pray for our students as they live their lives for Christ.

Thank you,
WORM-Youth Pastor

Thank You

I would like to thank everyone for the prayers, cards, phone calls, and visits during the last several weeks. Life sometimes overloads our schedules that we don't understand. That is exactly how I felt when I received the phone call at 2:00 a.m. that my mother was not expected to make it through the night. I hopped on a plane on New Years Day and flew to West Virginia. God allowed me to spend a week with my mother before I had to return to Oklahoma for my daughters wedding on Saturday, Jan. 10th. My mother passed away on Sunday, Jan 11th. I was comforted to know that she no longer was suffering and was at home with her Lord. On Tuesday, Jan 13th, I had a deep brain stimulus implant. The surgery went well and I know it was because I had an army of prayer warriors on my side. I'm scheduled to have the controller implanted on Feb. 2nd. Again, thank you for everything!!! GOD IS GOOD!!!
